

Bluehost Announces Sponsorship Of 2018 WordPress WordCamps

NASHVILLE, Tenn. and TEMPE, Ariz., Dec. 1, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Today at WordCamp US, leading web hosting provider Bluehost, an Endurance International Group company and top-rated web host by WordPress.org, announced its continued commitment to supporting the WordPress community through its global sponsorship of WordCamps, community organized conferences that take place in cities around the world where WordPress enthusiasts meet to share knowledge about WordPress and the online platform it offers.

"As a top-tier global sponsor of WordCamp, Bluehost contributes to building our community of passionate WordPress users. Bluehost's investment in WordCamp is critical to keeping these events affordable for WordPress users to attend, share their knowledge and learn from each other, which is what the WordPress community is all about," said Matt Mullenweg, lead developer WordPress and founder and CEO of Automattic.

WordCamp US will take place in Nashville, Tennessee where thousands of WordPress users, developers and advocates will meet to learn and share knowledge with the community. In addition to being an event sponsor, Bluehost provided two WordCamp US scholarships to Women Who WP through WordCamp Central and awarded one lucky Bluehost social media follower an all-expenses paid trip to WordCamp US 2017.

"We are proud of our contribution to the WordPress Foundation and our support of the WordPress community. Whether through our engagement with the community or our WordPress focused solutions, Bluehost is committed to supporting the growing number of small business owners and entrepreneurs around the world who use WordPress," stated Bluehost Vice President of Product Development, Brady Nord.

Through monthly contests, Bluehost Twitter followers can win tickets to local WordCamp events, backpacks full of swag or a trip to WordCamp US 2018.
